Why is it important?
• Miscommunication and conflict across the generations can negatively effect the following:
  ➢ Productivity
  ➢ Morale
  ➢ Employee turnover
  ➢ $$$

Just one piece of the pie . . .
Words of Caution

• Not a trend
• Even Demographers disagree on time breaks
• There is no “right” generation
• Generational studies are generalizations
• Based on American influences
• Differences exist all over the world

A Generation is . . .

• A group of people who come to share a common culture that provides them with a collective memory to sustain them over a finite period of time

More to know . . .

• Most experts agree that common shared experiences define a generation
• Many of these shared experiences occur in the formative years of 11-15

Workplace Generations

• Traditionalists: 1930–1945 (66-81)
• Baby Boomers: 1946–1964 (47-65)
• Generation X: 1965–1976 (35-46)
• Generation Y: 1977–1990 (21-34)
  ➢ Millennials: 1991-2011 (0-20)

For the first time in modern history, workplace demographics now span five generations, meaning that 20-year-old new hires can find themselves working side-by-side with colleagues who are older than they are by 50 years (or even more).
“People resemble their times more than they resemble their parents.”
